September 1992

Dear Complimentary Worldwatch Library Member:

I hope you've found the Worldwatch publications you've received in the last year helpful and inspiring.

Worldwatch readers like you are some of the best-informed people on the planet. And we intend to help you stay that way. In the past year you found out, in State of the World 1992 and the Worldwatch Papers:

How making the global economy sustainable will actually add jobs. What the mass extinction in progress means to our future--and how we might begin to stem it. How we can make a smooth transition to a solar powered economy. Why no national government has a workable plan to deal with nuclear waste.

These ground-breaking Worldwatch stories made headlines in newspapers around the world--some 40 a day on average. Worldwatch researchers appeared on dozens of radio and TV shows, including NPR's All Things Considered, CNN's FutureWatch, PBS' MacNeil/Lehrer NewsHour, ABC's World News Tonight, and BBC's World Service.

You probably just received Gender Bias: Roadblock to Sustainable Development, a powerful, provocative report that shows that discrimination against women in the Third World is the number one reason for skyrocketing birthrates. Soon you'll get a cutting-edge look at the status of indigenous peoples.

There's even more in store for the year ahead, including a fresh look at the environment and business. The environment and trade. Oceans....

Won't you please take this opportunity to show your support of our work? By paying for your Membership, you'll be helping to fund our world-acclaimed research. And you'll be sure to receive State of the World 1993 fresh off the press in January, plus another six vital Worldwatch Papers.

Sincerely,

Lester R. Brown
President

P.S. Our Library Membership remains a rare deal at $25--a 39 percent savings off the cover prices! And, so that we can save paper, and save you both, we're now offering a multi-year subscription. STAY ON TOP OF THE WORLD FOR TWO YEARS FOR JUST $45; three years for $65. See the order form for details.
